Hongkong, April 21st, 1873. Ar the meeting of the Legislative Council to take place to-day at 2:30 p.m., the ordinance for making provision for the regulation, inspection, and approval of the fittings of ships intended for the conveyance of Chinese emi grants, to be embarked at ports and places' out of the Colony, is to be discussed. This ordinance, as explained by the ATTORNEY. GENERAL, is rather an elaboration of the regulation already existing under section 27. of the Harbour Master's Ordinance (1 of 1862) than anything in the form of now legislation, its chief force being that it transfors the discretion as to what fittings shall be allowed, from the HARBOUR MASTER to the Governoe, and places the provisions of the section 27 upon a clearer basis, the section itself being repealed. To this or dinance, there will probably not be any very great opposition, as it aims at a very definite end, namely, the prohibition of certain class of fitting, the weak point, however, being that the fittings which are to be

probibited are not specified in the Ordinance. There is a clause (No. VII.) which provides that it shall be lawful for the Governor from time to time, by proclamation to be inserted in the Gazetie, to prohibit the use or carriage in any ship of any description of fittings therein specified, and every such prohibition shall have the same force and effect, as if it were expressly enacted in the ordinance. This unfortunately leaves the Council without any means of judging of the extent to which the enactment be carried, but we presume it is dosigned against fittings of a character which are in themselves objectionable, such as gratings or barricades—such fittings in fact as have, up to the present, been considered a fit cause for interference on the part of the HARBOUR MASTER. It seems, however, somewhat superfluous to pass the Ordinance under notice, if the much more stringent enactment for repressing abuses connected with Chinese Emigration, which was also laid on the table at the last meeting of Council, is to definite opinion, but probably such would not be adopted. The effect of the latter Ordi- be the case, as we believe, several legal digninance would undoubtedly be to put down turies hold shares in the Hongkong and taking the most indirect part in regard to fitting out any vessel intended for emigrants, and the passing of the first proposed ordinance as to fittings would seem, under such circumstances, to be entirely superfluous. It is in fact somewhat like making a regulation | perhaps, even a Chief-Justice himself. as to how a man is to behave when he comes to a certain place, and supplementing it by a second regulation that he shall not come to that place at all. It is very noticeable that the Government should have brought the scores :forward these two Ordinances separately, and it is perhaps to be hoped that they have done so under the very justifiable impression that it is excessively doubtful whether it is possible to pass the second enactment, or at all events whether it could ever be effectually put into force, if it were passed. It is certainly to be hoped that this is the view entertained, and that the Government will be contented with the first enactment, which is assuredly strong enough to put down anything like serious abuses in connection with the fitting out of vessels. It is no doubt to be regretted that it has taken exactly ten years to discover that Section twenty-seven, which undoubtedly gives very great powers to the Harbour Master, is defective; but, it hardly appears that the Ordinance which it is now proposed to substitute for it, fully bears out that

- proposition, inaumuch as it is little more than such an elaboration of the original pro-

the simple text, have been quite possible under the original Ordinance, with the one excoption, that the Governos, instead of the HARBOUR MASTER is to decide from time to time against what class of fittings the provisions of the Ordinance shall be enforced. We shall look with much interest on the discussion of the subject, which will no doubt clear the way to the consideration of the second, and much more important. Ordinance to be shortly brought forward.

A somewhat original notification appears n Saturday's Gazette, namely :-

"Under instructions from the Right Honorable the Scoretary of State for the Colonics, it is hereby notified that in Colonies not having responsible Government, Official Members of Council only are entitled to wear the Civil Uniform as prescribed by the Colonial Regu-

" By command, "OECIL O. SMITH,

" Acting Colonial-Secretary." The notification is suggestive of a variety of reflections. Has any honourable and nonofficial member been thinking of wearing the uniform in question, and is it intended to convey by the above intimation that the Government of Hongkong is irresponsible? It a parcel of goods sent for her husband, and is satisfactory, at all events, to notice that the official members are entitled to wear a civil uniform, as this may perhaps be a prelude to their adopting civil manners and giving civil send them on to her. The Gazette of Saturday notifies, that "the Secretary of State for the Colonies has been pleased to extend the leave of the Hon, J. G. Austin, Coloinal Secretary, for six months from bim to take a rifle into India-which it appears the 15th of June next, without Salary." Colony would no doubt be pleased to extend the leave of a good number of officials on the same terms, and indefinitely, if desired.

From the same source we learn that Mr. Lister is to devote such spare moments as he can squeeze out of the time he has to give to his duties as acting assistant Harbour Master and Coroner, to the little diversions apportaining to the office of Sheriff, vice Wodehouse, absent on leave—with salary.

We hear that a somewhat serious outrage was committed in the Scolor Seas by a Spanish - man of war, or gunboat, on the Scotland, a small American- vessel which was trading in those parts. It seems that although flying the American flag, she was stopped, boarded, and searched. There could be no pretence that she was in Spanish waters, nor, so far as we have heard, can any excuse be made for the high handed proceeding. It would seem not improbable that the matter will be taken in hand by the American Admiral.

A case which should form a warning tostorekeepers, and others, how they entrust parcels for delivery to Chinamen, came before Mr. Mitchell on Saturday. It appears that a parcel of goods was given up to someone who wrongful- the Shangbai Yucht Olub. ly signed the name of the person to whom they were sent. Thus the Madeup will be the holder of the Chal lenge Cup until next spring, in addition to prize of $50. As stated in the terms of the race, it must be won at two consecutive Spring meetings before it can be finally held, so the Madeap will have to prove her merit again on a future occasion. Had the Charm started, her chance of winning would have been very fair and had she succeeded in doing, so, she would have held the Cup: but the strong brocze that was blowing prior to the start, probably deterred her. As it happened, the breeze fell light and was even more moderate than it appeared to be: Barring accidents, the Phanton would undoubtedly have won, but accidents sometimes happen to yachts as well as other frail bodies. Q.C., and Mr. Coben for the defendant. Mr. Russell, in opening the case, explained that the plaintiff was an incurance broker, who carried on business under the name of Baker and Daniels, Fenchurch-street; and the defendant was an underwriter at Lloyd's. The policy was for £7,000, and the defendant had underwritten it for £200. The plaintiff occupied that position only because the policy was taken out in his name, the persons who were really interested in the claim being Messre. Pau La Cave and Co., wine merchants, Billiter-street, The policy was dated the 1st February, 1872, and was on wine in cask from San Lucar, in Spain, to London. Messrs. Patt La Cave and Co. had, amongst their customers, Mr. Sch.n. burg, a wine-merchant, at Harrogate and in London, and this gentleman was Spanish Consul at Middlesbrough, and he supplied wine to the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and other persons of high rank. Mr. Schonburg applied also, that the gold coins which Mr. S. must to Messra. Early in January. 1872, the wine was ready at San Lucar, where the Murillo was expected in a few days. Through * Mesers. James Cunningham and Co., the agents for the company who owned the Murillo, freight room was taken for 135 butts, but when the vessel arrived there was room under deck for very few of the butts, and, therefore, the great bulk of them were stowed on deck, along with some bags of cork. As the jury knew, the Murillo was an iron screw steamer, and owned in Seville. On this particular voyage she carried lead, copper, oil, wine, and other things; in fact, a general Spapish cargo. She had below deck 585 tons, and on deck some 75 or 90 tons. Suon after she left the weather became bad and got worse, and a sea broke over her that loosed some of the wine casks, which circumstance placed the crew and also the ship in danger. A sort of council of the ship's company was velope containing $7,000 in current funds, called, and it was unanimously agreed that walked down the nisie and hid it in front of the the deck cargo should be sacrificed. Therespon the wine was stove in and the empty casks and the cork were thrown overboard and, this having been done, the ship weathered the storm and arrived in London with the remainder of her cargo about the 10th February. The defendant in answer to the action pleaded among other things, that the goods were not lost by the perils insured against, and that the vessel was not sea-worthy, in consequence of the cargo being stowed on deck. After several witnesses had been examined the case was adjourned.

After some skirmishing and aparring an interview between York and Pomeroy was brought about, at which there was some talk about money, and finally a sort of anderstanding was arrived at Pomeroy then tried to work it with York through third parties. York, bowever, refused to negotiate with the third parties at all, and insisted on doing the business exolusively with the Senator himself, averring that the old Senstor was a nice man to do business with, and he wanted a full, fair, and personal understanding in the matter. At last Pomeroy suspended the by laws of his caution, and entered squarely into negotiations with York. Mr. Charles Russell, Q.C., Mr. Benjamin. The latter was none of your ten-cent fellows. He told Pomeroy that his constituents had threatened to hang him if he voted for the old man, and so it would be necessary for him to sell out for enough to insure his neck. He further said that if he voted for Pomeroy he should never dare to live in Montgomery County again, and hence he must sell out for enough to enable him to remove to some other locality, and to indemnify him against any sacrifice of property be might have to make in disposing of his effects in Montgomery. This recital harrowed up the old man, and he offered York about $5,000. This York felt obliged to decline. The case was one of desperation with him, and he must have at least $8,000. At this Pomeroy made a good many wry faces, but finally effected a compromise on this basis -to wit, $2,000 down, $5,000 within 48 hours, and the other $1,000 after be was elected. Well. Tork took his $2,000 and attended the Pomeroy cauous, where he made the speech of proselyte, and was among the humblest of the late and contrite converts. The next day put in his pocket along with the other $2,000, having Pomeroy's promise to pay an additional $1,000 after he was elected. That last $1,000 York will probably lose. Things went on lovely till after Tuesday's esparate ballots, and then the mischief began to hubble up to the surface. On Tuesday night the anti-Pomercy people had a caucus, at which a concentration was effected upon Mr. Ingalls, with a pledged strength of 62. When the House and Senate want into joint ballot to-day, it was not long before the presiding officer rapped order with his cavel and announced that the Legislature of Kansas, in joint convention, would now proceed to ballot for United States' Senator for the full term, beginning March 4th, 1873. There was a dead hush then as Senator York, of Montgomery, arose and claimed the floor on a question of privilege; which was granted him. He drew from his pocket an en-Speaker, with the request that he would count the money. There was a little buzz of surprise and then a hush of strained expectancy as the Speaker turned over the crisp notes, and York walked back to bis seat. " Gentlemen,' and York. I have an explanation to make to this body upon my vote for Senator. I shall vote for Samuel C. Pomeroy for the best reason in the world, and that reason is now on the desk of your presiding officer.' There were a good many paie and scared faces in that ball then. He then went on and detailed the circumstances of his bribery. As he proceeded the excitement became intense, and finally whenever the name of Pomercy was mentioned, there was a storm of indignation. It was a revolution. York closed his speech with an impassioned peroration that raised the wildest tumult in the halls and in the galleries, and eat down. It was several minutes before the presiding officer could

A despatch to the St. Louis Globe says :-

"An enthusiastic ratification meeting is beling held to-night. Mr. Ingalls' seat and his election did not coat him a dollar or a pledge. The election of Mr. Ingalls is recognized as a conspicuous triumph of the honesty and intebeing addressed by Messra Thatcher, Cobb. Snoddy, and others. Indescribable excitement prevails. The following resolution was passed at the public meeting :- Resolved by this meeting, that the hearty thanks of the people of Kansas are due to Colonel York, the distinguished Senstor from Montgomery, for his

A HEROINE, -A woman named Virginie Chesquieres has just died in the Petits Menages Asylum, Issy, within 55 days of attaining her handredth year. A remurkable act of heroism is related of this female under the First Empire. It was during an engagement in the Peninsular War; the colonel of the 27th Regiment had been killed, and left on the ground, when a sergeant, a slight young man, and two soldiers devoted themselves to recovering the body of their officer. They started together, but the two men were struck down on the way, and the sergeant only reached the spot; he attempted to lift the corpse on to his shoulders; but was too weak to do so; perceiving two of the enemy at a distance, be made signs as if he were wounded, and the others hastened forward expecting to make a prisoner, of them, then seized his horse—the other fled got the body on it, mounted himself, and galloped back to the French lines. There it was seen that the young man was bimself wounded. as blood was flowing freely from his breast; he was undressed, in spite of his resistance, ment of the Nord, who six years before, seeing asylum at Issy.—Galigadai.

pity of it, Ingo!"-Othello, IV. 1. Our country is not rich in historic buildings around which cluster our few traditions. Of those we have, the work of preserving an unequal proportion rests with the inhabitants of a single city, and that city, it is almost unnecessary to add, is Boston. Almost the first enquiry made, when the news of the great fire spread over the country, concerned the fate of these famous edifices, and the expression of reliof and gratitude became universal when it was known that all of them were spared. The fire stopped at the threshold of the Old South Church. The explosions of gunpowder had destroyed its windows, but walls and belfry and spire stood intact. Scarcely, however, have the press of other cities found time to congratulate their elder sister that her great loss included nothing beyond the power of money to replace, when it is formally announced that those most immediately concerned by no means regard this as matter for felicitation. The single fault they have to find with the fire is, that having gone so far, it did not go one step further, and include their most venerated church in the long list of its victims. Having failed to do so, they now propose to complete its unfinished work, and level one more historic monument to the ground. That such an not of sucrilege and breach of trust to the whole American people should be thought of, much less actually perpetrated, reflects no credit on the Bostonians of to-day. The Old South is unquestionably the oldest and most venerated church in their city; if not, indeed, in all America, Few strangers from the newer portions of the country visit the old town without pausing smid the throng of Washington-Street to read the inscription on Both of the other quaint memorials of bygone the unpretending belfry-so plain, so solid, so times and famous deeds of famous men will typical of the generation which erected it— soon be gone beyond recovery; how long will LANDS. which tells in fewest words the history of the Fanguil Hall outlast them? Built in the year 1729, during the administra-

bishop and historian of William and Mary's increasing; it is, besides, even more inconreign, it was within the walls of this church, veniently placed than the Old South, for those not less than within those of the Old State purposes of public meeting for which it was House or of Fanenil Hall, that the early spirit of independence found elequent expression. It was through the pulpit wind w of this very of the Old South. Having finally disposed of building, then thronged with British uniforms. that Dr. Joseph Warren made his entrance by in all minds but their own, an unusual degree a ladder on March 5, 1775 to deliver his oration of " veneration" and "sentiment" had unforon the Boston massacre. Tradition says that while he spoke, an officer, sitting on the pulpit steps before him, significantly amused himself by playing with two musket-balls, tossing them carelessly from hand to band. The next year saw the sacred building turned into a stable and a riding school for the British cavelry, More recently, it has been in this church that for many years the legislature and executive of Massachusetts have listened to those election sermons with which, from time immemorial, the government of that State has begun its annual labors.

The best poetry and flotion of America have also freely contributed to the interest which clusters about the building. It was "the knell of midnight from the steeple of the Old South" which Hawthorne tells us mingled with the "dismal strains" of music and the roar of rebel artillery, to the accompaniment of which the weird procession vanished from hefore the Province House, on the night of " Howe's Masquerade." It was this same bell which was uninously tolling a death as Lady Elegnore Rocbeliffs descended at the gate of Gov. Shute's maneign; while it was in a chased silver goblet belonging to "the communionplate of the Old South Church" that her crazed lover offered the sacramental wine to the wearer of the fatal mantle. Indeed, Bow-bells are not more associated with London, or more familiar to London ears, than the bell of the Old South has been to many generations of Bostonians. It rang out glad peals from present belfry at the coronation of kings, while Boaton was yet the capital of a province; and it rang yet gladder peals for peace in 1783, and again in 1815, and once again in 1865. It tolled sadly for the victims of the Boston Massacre and for George Washington, and for Abraham Lincoln. For more years than we can now name, "the clock of the Old South has thrown its voice of ages on the breeze, knelling the Past, crying out far and wide through the multitudinous city, and filling its cars with its reverberating depth of tone."

"Bricks and mortar"! "Society funds"! Undoubtedly the pew-holders of the Old South Union Insurance Society of Canton, new shores Church of Boston are most respectable persons, but to dwellers at a distance they do scem a China Traders' Insurance Company's Shareslittle singular. They evidently belong to that class of New Englanders whom Hawthorns China and Japan Marine Insurance-Tls. 105 knew so well, and towards whom he left an instinctive antipathy-"excellent, exceedingly matter-of-fact sort men, stordily accustomed to take what called the common-sense view of all matters China Fire Insurance Company's Shares-$132 that come under their consideration. . One can imagine a committee of these worthy. persons visiting Europe, with a view, perhaps, to picking up some hints on church architecture wherewith to grace the edifice which is to Hongkong Gas Company's Shares-$65 per replace the Old South: With what indignant, outspoken contempt they would regard an effete Hongkong Hotel Company's Shares-48 per race which allowed such piles of "brick and mortar" as St. Faul's Cathedral or Westminster Abbey to occupy two of the best business sites in London-sites, too, either of which would Indo-Chinese Sugar Company-70 per cent command a rental much exceeding $23,000, and taxes, per annum. Their location also is wholly undesirable for places of worship; they are miles away from Tymenia, or May Fair, or the Weste End; indeed, in the eyes of our committee their longer preservation would such an unjustifiable use of "the funds of the society" that they could not but shake the dust of London from their feet and go over to Paris. There the towers to local trader. of St. Jaques and Notre Dame would renew their diagnat; yet even the Commune apared to France its old religious sanctuaries; moved thereto, perhaps, by what one of the committee | to travelling trader characterized at home as "a mere reminiscence." Doubtless, however, Rome would occasion our friends the severest succk of all We can easily imagine these worthy, matterof-fact gentlemen standing in the Coliseum and measuring with their eyes that useless quarry of building materials. They would see in it a vast space, adapted only for games of the circus or the conflicts of gladiators, but now preserved as a church. It is wholly unfit for purposes of worship; it is far removed from the residence quarters of the city; while, so far is circuses are concerned, it is never utilized for entertainments of that nature; and, as to gladiatorial conflicts, they are "a mere reminiscence," and wholly repugnant to the spirit of modern improvement. Yet to the great detriment" of the funds of the society," no doubt, this useless pile of "brick and mortar" is preserved, and even venerated. Truly, the peoples of Europe are indeed benighted, but now arons change tout cela,

It is absurd to be angry with men like those into whose hands the Old Bonth has unfortunntely passed. They act according to their. lights, and it was long ago conceded that against stupidity the gods themselves contend in vain. The power is in this once theirs, and doubtless they will exercise it. They will, out of the market value of the Old South, construct a more comfortable and showy edifice in the fushionable quarter of Boston, and there, doubtless, they will hereafter worship after the fushion of their creed, hugging themselves in the fond belief that in trampling on "a sentiment" they have advanced the cause of religion. With them it would be useless to reason. An evil chance placed in their hands one of the very few buildings of which America can bonst as enjoying almost a world-wide fame, and they conscientiously destroyed it. Of one thing they may rest assured—the next generation of Bostonians will not forget them, for their work can never be undone. This proceeding, bowever, is not likely to stop with the Old South. Undoubtedly the convenient principle that mere "sentiments" of " veneration" must not be allowed to protect piles of "brick and mortar" will find other subjects of application. In Buston, as we have said, it so happens that an unusual proportion of our more famous ediffices are found. Three of these we have already alluded to-the Old South, the old State-House, so famous ! early Revolutionary history, and, lastly, Fancuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty." Of these the Old South is doomed, and the Old State-House has long been threatened. The one represents Ground Printed too much money in the shape of a corner lot peculiarly available for business purposes, the other stands in the way of certain public im- suitable for Ladies' Morning Coatumes and provements. Temple Bar has, it is true, stood | Wrappers. in their way somewhat longer, but, fortunately for "sentiment," Temple Bar is not in Boston history not of Massachusetts and Boston alone, utilized as a public square—a most needed convenience in that part of Boston, for the Hall is now very much in the way of murket wagons tion of Governor Burnet, son of the famous the number of which is said to be constantly constructed. The argument is very strong, and will doubtless commend itself to the pew-holders one pile of " brick and mortar " around which tunately gathered, they can next turn their destroying energies to another, though hardly more famous structure. JOURNALISM. Newspapers are getting to be much more than mere transcirpts of the flews and gossip of the day. • They are pioneers in learned exploration: they are foremost in geographical and historical discovery; they are teachers of social science. They are no longer satisfied with disseminating the knowledge laboriously collected by savans. by travellers, by experimenters in natural philosophy; they must pursue their own investigations, and sent their agents into all the half explored fields of science and adventure. The reporter of to day is the adventurer who penetrates, the desert and jungle, the scholar who searches for relies of the forgotten past. the courier who bears the news of victory to Courts and Congresses across a wilderness and through bostile armies, the detective who pries into public abuses and discovers hidden wrongs, the ploneer who throws new countries open to the world, the philanthropist who unbars the door of the torture chamber, the chemist who detects adulteration in the spice-box, the inspector who seizes false weights and measures. the auditor who exposes a theft in the public treasury. Journalism busics itself now with everything that affects the public welfare. It trenches upon: the province once sacred to the scholar; and supplies—the-defects-of- an inefficient government. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast conomy of space, schieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which bave heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurat's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectivel with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in plains subjects fully with which very few in vis .deed of them are perfectly acquainted. To Detached & semi-detached Dwell-} parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally, It comprises upwards of two thousand large Otherdwelling Houses, used strictquarte pages.

"THE CANE-BOTTOMED CHAIR BY WILLIAM MAKEPPACE THACKBRAY. In tattered old slippers that toast at the bars, And ragged old janket perfumed with eighrs, Away from the world and its toil and its cares, I've a snug little kingdom up four pairs of stairs

To mount to this room is a toil, to be sure. But the fire there is bright and the air rather pure And the view I behold on a sunshiny day Is grand, through the chimney-pots ever the way.

This snug little chamber is crammed in all nooks, With worthless old nicknacks and silly old books, And foolish old odds and foolish old ends. Cracked bargains from brokers, choap keepsalces from friends.

Old armor, prints, pictures, pipes, china,

Old rickety tables, and chairs broken backed A two-penny treasury, wondrous to see; What matter? 'tis pleasant to you, friend, and me No better divan need the Sultan require,

Than the creaking old sofa that basks by the fire And 'tis wonderful, surely, what music you get From the rickety, ramshackle wheezy spinet That praying rug came from a Turcomon's camp

By Tiber once twinkled that brazen old lamp;

A Manieluke fierce yonder dagger has drawn; 'Tis a murderous knife to toast muffins upon. Long, long through the hours, and the night, and the chimes,

Here we talk of old books, and old friends, and old times:

But of all the cheap treasures that garnish my nes There is one that I love and cherish the best; For the finest of coaches that's padded with hair I never would change thee, my cane-bottomed Atlantic Monthly.

chair. If chairs have but feeling in holding such charme,

I looked and I longed, I wished in despair;

It was but a moment she sat in this place; She'd a scarf on her neck, and a smile on her face!

A smile on her face, and a rose in her bair,

As she sat there and bloomed in my cans-bottomer And so I have valued my chair ever since, Like the shrine of a saint, or the throne of a prince; Saint Fanny, my patroness sweet, I declare

When the candles burn low, and the company

In the silence of night as I sit here alone-I sit here alone, but we yet are a pair-My Fanny I see in my cane-bottomed chair.

She comes from the past and revisite my room She looks, as she then did, all beauty and bloom So smiling and tender, so fresh and so fair : And yonder she sits in my cane-bottomed chair
